eler.

School closed on Friday to reopen

on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

Those who attended the entertainment presented by the Girl Reserves spent a most enjoyable evening witnessing a program which showed much initiative and original ability on the part of the girls and Miss Cottrell who directed their efforts.

The program opened and closed with music by the school orchestra. The girls are very grateful to Mrs. Bowden and the personnel of the orchestra for their valued contribution to the program. The Girls' Glee Club rendered two selections in a creditable manner. Miss Cottrell delighted the audience with "A Japanese Love

Song," which she gave in costume.

Other special numbers included a solo

by Hazel Grover, who sang "Alice's

Blue Gown" in appropriate costume.

Miss Grover has a voice of pleasing quality and her number was enthusiastically received.

The clog dance, an original number by seven girls who appeared in costumes representing different nationalities, was well executed and called forth hearty applause. These participating were Frances King, Martha

Kinney, Gertrude French, Ethel Keen,

Ruth Bennett, Verna Berry, Betty

Brown, June Brown and Eva Richardson.

GOULD 41—LINCOLN 25

The Gould Academy basketball quint,

after a hard trip to Newmarket, decisely defeated Lincoln 41 to 25 for a second time this year. The game was hard fought and at times rough, mainly due to the small floor. It took the blue and gold a few minutes to find their bearings and get accustomed to the floor as after four minutes of playing found Lincoln leading 7-3.

Chesley and Tice were the outstanding scorers while Dickey was the best floor man for the winners. Bates with 14 points starred for Lincoln.

After the game the team motored to East Boothbay where they were guests of Mr. Arthur L. Rice, manager of the La Plaza Hotel of Boston. Mr.

Rice is a uncle of "Art" Chesley and a former star player of the Portland Y. M. C. A. team of about 1910.

The following is the lineup:

SKATING RINK OPENED

The Municipal Skating Rink, under

sponsorship of the Bethel Lion's Club was opened to the public on Christmas day and was thronged with children and young people, who seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves.

The committee has drawn up the following rules, which they hope will be met with general approval. They have tried as far as possible to provide hours for skating that will give the greatest amount of pleasure to the greatest number, and hope that those using the rink will cheerfully observe them.

The rink as well as conduct upon it will be under the supervision of Frank

A. Hunt, who has authority to enforce the rules. No rowdiness will be permitted and offenders will be denied the use of the rink.

ALTON W. RICHARDSON

Alton W. Richardson passed away

Wednesday, Dec. 18, at his home in Georgetown, Mass., following a sickness of two weeks.

He was born in Norway, July 9,

1882, the son of Albert B. and Edna

Bethel (Benn) Richardson. His parents

moved to Peabody, Mass., later coming to Bethel where he attended Gould

Academy, graduating in the class of 1902. He then enrolled in the agricultural course at the University of Maine, graduating in 1906. He was a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

For several years he was engaged in the poultry business in Bethel in which he was highly successful. He returned to the University of Maine for a post graduate course in 1915 and was an instructor at Northeastern Agricultural School for a time. He was an instructor at the University of Maine for a year. In 1917 he went to the University of New Hampshire where he had charge of the poultry department until the summer of 1928, when he left to take up extension work in connection with Wiltmore Feeds.

For a number of years he had been interested in the Rock Hill Farm at Georgetown and was manager of that

A Picture for Christmas

By Clara Agee Hays

ON CHRISTMAS eve Marion surveyed her apartment—wreaths of holly in the windows and a tiny tree with colored lights in the living room. For three Christmases—all alone—she'd done this. Even baked a chicken to well—make it seem Christmasy.

Anyway, she wasn't hungry or homeless. Marion's smile was wistful and perhaps a little bitter. There was no one in the whole city to share her Christmas. She'd worked up to a good job, but her business acquaintances all had their own family festivities. How the girls who worked under her had planned and chattered for the last week! They called Marion "Miss Morris" and were kind before her. Of course, she couldn't break the ice with, "I'm only a lonely girl! Don't think of me as a boss. Let me share your fun."

Marion passed, now, as she passed "Jack's" picture on her table. Playfully she screwed up her face. She'd get him a present, of course. A—cigar case with his initials—expensive but simple. That's the way the girls at the office sounded. And he'd get her a—She dropped the envelope and hurried to rescue the potatoes—scorched for supper.

Last year "Jack" had been a present from herself. Her brother, Ben, thousands of miles away, had sent a snapshot of himself taken with a young man. "My pal and I—He's a real fellow," Ben had scribbled across the back. Marion had studied the face in the picture and yearning born of a long unrealized dream of romance stirred her. Finally when last Christmas came she had guiltily cut her brother's picture off and had the other enlarged, tinted, and framed.

"The color of his eyes?" asked the artist.

"Oh—er—brown," she said and blushed. That was what she wanted him to have. She had called him "Jack." And ever since "Jack" had been her confident, her pal, her fiancé.

"Here on business. . . . Told Ben I'd look you up."

The long evening passed more easily when she had to tell the large brown eyes and dashed of the time she and "Jack" might have a home of their own.

But, tonight, another empty Christmas eve, Marion with twinkling eyes, became matter of fact Miss Morris of the office. "It's ridiculous," she smiled. "Completely in line with a picture. I must be losing my mind." Indicatively she thrust "Jack" into a drawer and sat down to make herself read and forget.

Suddenly the door bell rang. Marion opened the door cautiously. Then she gasped.

When David Halse entered he wondered why the attractive sister of his pal stared at him as if she could not believe her eyes and sank weakly into a chair.

"Here on business. . . . Told Ben I'd look you up."

Marion looked to say nothing. "I'm glad you came," David looked at her for a moment, then he was gone.

There'd been time to talk about David Halse's new apartment with her brother. And Marion's heart was so full of the picture of "Jack" that she didn't know what to do.

STUDY ENVIRONMENT OF U. S. CHILDREN

Nation-Wide Inquiry Is Sponsored by President.

Washington.—A nation-wide inquiry into the physical and social environment of the American child is moving forward. Permanent headquarters for the investigation have been opened in the Interior department and 24 prominent educators, physicians, and sociologists have agreed to direct various phases of the investigation, which was sponsored by President Hoover.

Organization of the working force to place the American child under a microscope, determining his life, and recommending means of curing them have been completed. The group of public men chosen to make the survey immediately will begin collecting data. Fully 18 months, they predict, will be so spent.

General Meeting to Be Held. With the study completed, a general conference of the committee members will be called in Washington to consider conditions as they have found them and decide what may be done to improve them.

The investigation, announced by President Hoover at a White House conference some months ago, was made possible by a gift of $500,000 by some of the President's friends. He declined to name them.

A complete picture of the American child and his environment will be painted by the investigators, who will turn the spotlight of science into the home and school in their search for facts. Public health organization, medical service for children, the family and parent education, vocational guidance, parental and maternal care—these are some of the subjects assigned to the study committee.

The Handicapped Child. The "handicapped" child, including both the physically and mentally abnormal, will be the subject of a particularly diligent study. Four committees will work in this field. One will survey state and local organizations for the handicapped, another the physically and mentally handicapped child, yet another the child who is socially handicapped by dependency, and finally, another will seek data on delinquent children.

A committee of 25 persons, including Secretaries of Interior Wilbur and of Labor Davis, was designated by Mr. Hoover to supervise the investigation.

Negress Gives Up White Baby in Hospital Mixup

Havana, Cuba.—A baby-mixed baby that nearly wrecked one Cuban home and a fair-haired infant that was the pride and joy of a young negress who thought she was its mother finally were returned to their proper parents when a strange case was solved in City court.

Berandina Vega, the negress, gave up the white child she had learned to love and look upon as her own, and accepted in its place a dark-skinned plebeian that nearly caused a divorce in the family of Caridad Perez.

The two babies were born about the same time last December in a maternity hospital and were mixed during their first bath. As the days passed Senora Perez's charge began to turn dark of skin. The husband, after many stormy scenes, insisted suit for divorce.

Ten days ago Senora Perez called on the police to aid her in proving the child in her possession was that of a negress. Chief of Detectives Calvo started a search and found the white infant in the possession of Berandina.

California Coeds Get 2:00 A. M. Curfew

Los Angeles.—Two o'clock in the morning has been set as the deadline for coeds at the University of California at Los Angeles to return from dates. This decision was reached at a women's council meeting headed by Mrs. Helen Matthews Laughlin, dean of women.

The time limit for week night dates was set at twelve o'clock. Freshmen have been limited to two week-end dates only; sophomore women have been limited to two week-end dates and one during mid week.

While upper women may use their discretion as to how they are in their rooms before the deadline, special regulations governing hours where girls are staying were also discussed.

People So Law-Abiding Justice Is Idle 25 Years

Bethel, Pa.—W. B. Hagans, Justice of the peace in Oakland township for 25 years, probably has set a record in all the time he has held the office. He has not heard a case, civil or criminal, so law-abiding are the residents.

If differences arise between neighbors, Justice Hagans either reconciles them or advises that they take the case to another court.

Seized Slot Machines Turned Into Birdhouses

Merrill, Wis.—With a hammer and a knife John Aho whittled away his time in the county jail here making birdhouses out of confiscated slot machines. After breaking them to pieces the sheriff turns the slot machines over to the ambitious prisoner, who already had made several birdhouses which have been lodged in trees in the jail yard.

NEWBY

H. R. Powers and family called last Sunday to see Mrs. C. E. Burgess. Marian and Elinor Learned called last Saturday at Walter Powers'.

Carl Hakala and family were in Rumford last Wednesday shopping. A man from Harrison with his team is hauling lumber for Mr. Hakala.

They have the tea house moved back from the road. Mr. Morton had the snow plow out last week as there was quite a lot of snow. They went to Sunday River with it Saturday.

The boys and girls from the high schools are at home for the Christmas vacation.

High Street, West Paris

Deferred Elias McKen is driving a truck at summer and boards at home. Mrs. Charles Stetson spent Tuesday with Mrs. Charles Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips are staying at Willard Bryant's this winter. School will close Friday for a week's vacation.

Miss Georgia Spear goes to her home at North Haven Friday. Elmer Ingalls' trucks took three pairs of horses to Milan, N. H., to work in the woods this winter.

Elias McKen has moved his family over to his father's for the winter. Good humor has its acid test in high humidity.

Charity begins at home, only then, of course, it isn't charity.

UNITED STATES POTATOES
357,451.00 BUSHELS

The potato crop for the United States totals 357,451,000 bushels, compared with 465,359,000 the revised estimate for 1928 and 382,766,000 bushels the average production of the five years 1923-1927. This estimate is 23% less than last year's harvest and nearly 7% below the five year average. The smaller production this year is the result of both a reduction in acreage and a lower yield per acre. Acreage was reduced 12% from that of 1928 and yield per acre is 13% lower than in 1928. The total value of 1929 potato crop, based on December 1 prices, is 87% greater than the 1928 crop. An analysis of the entire potato situation will be made in connection with the January 1 stocks report to be issued about the middle of January.

Graphic Outlines of History

THE JAMESTOWN

SETTLEMENT
The homes of the Jamestown settlement were built in small groups so that greater protection might be had from the Indians. These were called stockades. High wooden walls were placed around the entire group. Around the inside of these walls ran a platform from which all combat was carried on.

A review of the distribution of the 1929 potato crop is of interest at this time. The crop this year for the United States, totalling 327,451,000 bushels, is for comparative purposes similar to the 1926 crop, totalling 354,228,000 bushels. The potato crop in the southern states (Va., N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla., Tenn., Ala., Miss., La., Texas, Okla., Ark., N. Mex., Ariz.) was about 21% below that of 1928 but 17% above average and about 25 million bushels greater than in

The crop in important states of deficient production (Del., Md., W. Va., Ohio, Ind., Ill., Ky., Iowa, Mo., N. H., Mass., R. I., Conn.) totals 58,323,000 bushels which is about 23% less than harvested last year and 4% below the five year average. The crop in these states is nearly 14 million bushels greater than in 1926. Production in these states is located close to consumption.

The 1923 potato crop is particularly light in all of the important late surplus states except Maine. The crop for these states (Maine, N. Y., N. J., Penn., Mich., Wis., Minn., S. D.) totals 10 million bushels, or about 25% less than harvested last year and nearly 14% below the five year average. In spite of the Maine potato crop expanding the 1923 total by about 11 million bushels production for this group of states is 14 million bushels less than the five year average.

Influenced by Bible

The list of authors whose work shows the influence of the Bible might suit to be endless, but we cite a few examples. Coleridge said, "In these studies of the Bible will keep any man from being vulgar, for there is nothing in my style or thought to commend the credit is due to kind parents in instilling into my mind an early love of the Scriptures." Another course taught Byron to love the Bible and his "Hebrew Melodist" was drawn wholly from the Scriptures.

Formula for Matches

The first friction matches were made with sulphur and tipped with a mixture of a concentrate of potassium nitrate and antimony and powdered glass, and were ignited by drawing through a piece of flint. Safety matches are manufactured; sulphur and chlorate of potassium are mixed with the phosphorus. Various manufacturers use different formulas. A typical formula is: phosphorus, 17 parts; sulphur, 10 parts; red lead, 24 parts; nitre, 28 parts. Safety matches contain no phosphorus, the principal ingredient being chlorate of potassium; the striking surface on the box is a mixture of

Wanted a Short Cut

By JANE OSBORN
(Copyright)

WHEN adverse circumstances made it necessary for Grandmother Auden to come back to the old Auden in Millville with her granddaughter, Laura, it was the grandmother's spirits ran high while Laura, depressed, just when most girls are having a time to have to bury myself off in an old factory village.

"There are nice people, Barringers," said Grandmother Auden to a youthful young-old woman of five. "There are nice people, Barringers."

"I am sorry," smiled Mrs. Auden, "but our plan is to have a continuous fence. I have always prized privacy above everything else. Really, I am sorry."

And that was all the satisfaction Claire got.

"Two days later the fence was complete, and then Tom Barringer stormed more than ever.

Then he decided that he would buy the section of property through which his short cut had run. He made an offer through his lawyer, but to his surprise Grandmother Auden refused. "Those Barringers are impossible," said Grandmother Auden to Laura one day. "I am really glad that we have not been forced to meet them in a social way."

The next day Laura was out prospecting for possible flower beds in the newly-fenced portion of their property when her grandmother's suggestion of a fence—when she heard the fall of feet behind her. She glanced up and there was Tom Barringer who had just managed to swing himself over the six-foot fence.

Laura looked up in surprise.

"I owe you an apology," said Tom, as soon as he had straightened himself out after his leap from the top of the fence post. "But I was anxious to get home without going through the streets, past all those houses, I didn't expect to be caught."

Laura giggled. "I guess it doesn't matter as long as it was I who caught you. I really don't see that you have done anything so very dreadful."

"But Mrs. Auden, your grandmother, would," suggested Tom.

"But she's in the house. Besides, I'd plead your cause. I could say I asked you to come over the fence."

Laura had looked in vain to find anything impossible in Tom Barringer's appearance. She added: "You know I think if you called to see my grandmother and she had a chance really to know you she would be glad to have you use your old short cut."

"I would like to call," said Tom, wondering how his father had ever found the Audens insufferable.

Six months later when there was a marriage in Millville that united the houses of Auden and Barringer, the general opinion was that there had been strong opposition on the part of Grandmother Auden, and that wise young old woman never suggested that the little romance was all of her own devising.

A breach of promise suit off and on for a month or so was the result.

All the world's a stage, we know course I didn't, and I don't. But the actors are paid and the audience is a family fond stand in the bleachers.
